Deaf and dumb from birth she was placed in an institution for deaf mutes at Staunton, Virginia, when but eight years of age She remained there ten years being educated in the manner usual in such institutions. When her term expired she could not reach home on account of the war, as it was impossible to pass through the lines at that time In the fall of 1871 she was brought to Decatur to reside with a sister In the summer of 1889 she was taken by her sister to the home of Mrs Ewing, where she had since resided In the winter of 1889-8 she attended the Harrison revival with her sister. She seemed greatly impressed by what she saw at the meetings and went to her sister and asked to be baptized. This rite was performed for her by the Rev W F Musgrove of Grace M E church in the spring of 1893. Her christian character was shown in her daily life of cheerfulness and self sacrifice, especially to the little ones committed to her care, over whom she watched with unceasing devotion Her place can never be filled in the home and little hearts she has left, and she is most sincerely mourned Miss Royston leaves a brother John Royston of Macon, and a sister, Mrs. Lachmere of Dubuque, Iowa.

MADE A GOOD HAUL

Thieves Entered Residence of L. L. Boblett.

STOLE SEAL SKIN WRAPS

And a Number of Other Articles—No Clue to Robbers—Theft Committed Early Saturday Evening.

From the Daily of Monday.

On Saturday evening some time between 7 and 8 o'clock, sneak thieves entered the residence of L. L. Boblett at No. 934 West Main street, and stole two seal skin wraps, two canes and a number of other articles, all of which were valued at about $200. As yet there is no clue to the thieves. The articles stolen were as follows: Seal skin cape trimmed with mink, a dark brown kersey jacket, an electric seal wrap, a gold handed cane, a brown and white ivory handle cane, and a lady's brown hat. The wraps were all handsome and expensive ones and the canes stolen were also quite valuable. It is not known just exactly when the articles were stolen, but the occupants of the house think that the theft was committed between 7 and 8 o'clock. Colonel Boblett was out of the house at that time and if the burglars entered the house at a later hour they would probably also have taken Mr. Boblett's overcoat, which he was wearing when he was out. As this was taken it is supposed that thieves visited the place when Mr. Boblett was out. At the time that the burglars must have been in the house Miss Margaret Boblett was in the parlor playing the piano. It would have been an easy matter however, for sneak thieves to have entered as the front door was unlocked and the cloaks and wraps were on the hat rack in the front hall near the door They evidently were satisfied with the haul they made and did not attempt to go in any other part of the house. The discovery of the theft was not made until the wraps were needed and it was then found that they had been taken

The police were notified and a reward has been offered for any information which may lead to the discovery of the thieves or the stolen articles

GOLD SEEKERS.

Klondike Fever Unabated in Central Illinois—More Recruits.

Clinton Public: "The Klondikers, who left Homer and Weldon, are now at Lake Bennett, Northwest Territory They will remain there until the ice leaves. They found their dogs a nuisance, and think they will do well to get $5 apiece for them. Packing goods over the mountain is the hardest work, they say, they ever did in their lives. They advise buying a $100 horse at Dyea. The weather on February 9 was 15 degrees below zero, but the wind and snow were heavy. They gather wood for fuel."

McLean Leno: "The Alaska gold hunters are scheduled to start from here next Tuesday. The party will consist of W. M. Story, William Park, Ed Pope, Lou Romans and Cal Ross, from this neighborhood. Dr. Webster, from Atlanta, and three gentlemen from Springfield. They will outfit at Chicago and Seattle, and there take steamer to Williams Sound. Their objective point, we are informed, will be the head waters of the Copper river, in the vicinity of the Alaskan mountains. Mr Story, the oldest man in the company, went to California in 1850 and his experience in mining will doubtless be of great value to his associates as well as himself Although 70 years old at his next birthday in July, he is as strong and active as most men are at 55, and will probably stand the trip equal with the best of them. Thomas H Stones, W H. Archer and W W Clifford have been planning to go but could not get ready so early in the season

Justice Smith said at the close of the trial that he had not quite understood all of the testimony in the case, and that, therefore, he would withhold his opinion in regard to the guilt or innocence of the accused, but that he thought they had better be bound over to the grand jury. Attorney J M Gray, who represented the defendants, offered to bet Attorney A B. Mills $50 that the Grabofskis would be acquitted by the grand jury Mr Mills declined to take the bet. W E Redmon and A B. Mills were the attorneys for the state

B. WEEMS AT SEA

Gossipy Letter Written on Board Ship.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE SEA SICK

The Decatur Boy Laid Out for Two Whole Days and Then Ate Enough for a Giant—One Man Died.

Below is the larger part of a letter written to Cecil Davidson by Buck Weems, who is now in Europe with his grandmother, Mrs Dr Hiram Buck, making a tour of the continent The letter was written on the Atlantic liner and will be found very interesting reading for the friends of the young man and the people generally:

THE LETTER

Dear Cecil.—You may be surprised at the shortness of this letter, but I am hard pressed for time. Though up from 6 a. m. until 12 m. I have scarcely any time for writing. Today is Sunday and so I have now nothing to do but write It is half past 3 p. m. and I have 36 letters to write after this one before dinner

I'm having a fine time There are 30 odd preachers, 19 bank presidents, several colonels and majors and judges and doctors galore. Not very promising?—but there are nearly 100 young people on board Some of them are dull, others sulky, others persons non grata for various reasons but in the end there are about 20 choice ones, and we have hot times. We stay on deck, eating, drinking and having a good time every night until late: then we go to the dining salon and have a light supper before going to bed. Eating and drinking are the chief things on board ship. We have five regular meals and lunches innumerable We have a hundred stewards on board. You can't turn around without seeing one, and seeing him, what is more natural than to say, "Steward, bring me some lemonade and sandwiches, and crackers and cheese; and, say, bring a basket of fruit too; and hold on, if there's anything else around that's good just bring it along too." Then you are fixed for half an hour at least; after which you call another steward and order the same, only a little more. It's all free, and the stewards delight to serve because they reap in that way a harvest of pfennigs. There are dances and dinners and lectures, etc., going on all the time Then, too, the meals take a good deal of time. There are never less than eight courses and often 10 or 11 People eat to live and live to eat and when they get tired of that kill time by eating I'll surely be a fatted calf by the time I reach home

BUCK SEA SICK

I wish you could be seasick once. It's quite an experience I was afraid that I would be sick and so ate a large meal before the boat got outside Sandy Hook I felt qualmish on the first evening Sunday morning I was sick, but got up and went on deck I stayed there until about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. I had heard that seasickness disgusted one with life, but it was not so in my case. I know that at least every 15 minutes I went to the stern, where there is always a fine view back over the wake of the vessel Sometimes, some fair young creature would come rushing up to my side. We never spoke we were too full for utterance. That's why we went there We simply hung over the rail and paid tribute to old Neptune Neptune must be rich by this time I don't envy him his riches not by a jug full Sunday afternoon I gave it up and went below I stopped taking any notice of time and lay flat on my back without moving. The beating of the screw shaft seemed red fire The talk of the men around seemed rainbow hued, but with a predominance of blue. Finally I reached my hand out and rang the bell "Steward," I said to that functionary when he came, "what time is it?" "Tree 'cloak, sir." "Steward, you're joshin', it was 8 when I came down." "Tree 'cloak dienstag," he replied "Do you mean to tell me I have been here two days and nights?" "Ya." I stopped to think it over. At last he coughed. "Oh, you there at it. Well, when did I eat last?" "Sat'day dinner" "Horrible! Horrible! Steward bring me one-half a roasted chicken, a glass of lemonade, half a dozen fresh oysters, some poached eggs on toast, some bread and butter, a beefsteak rare, some cucumbers, some apollinaris and some ice cream." "Ya, ya," he observed. "I thinks you feel better already." He disappeared, but returned in about half an hour with the full order. I finished it Up to this time the weather had been smooth, but now the ship is rolling violently and loose trunks began to clatter around the corridors until the stewards secured them But I was through with seasickness. I sent for something more to eat I sat far into the night, and the next morning got up early feeling bright and happy as a lark. The ship was light of ballast and rolling pretty badly. Nearly every one was sick that morning but I ate a large breakfast and followed it immediately by a lunch. Out of 350 odd passengers not quite 100 got down to breakfast. The rest were sick and the thought of their tortures somewhat compensated me for my own.

There are a few flirtations on board, of course. We are carrying two honeymoons also. I heard that lots of them were wonderfully and fearfully seasick. One passenger died the second day out from New York. He will be buried at Gibraltar.

That we may travel in the greatest possible comfort and ease a double crew of stewards are carried. There are now 220 men attached to the ship, besides many stewardesses.

We had an alarm of fire last night I was writing alone in the rear saloon about 1 o'clock a. m., when I smelt smoke. Just then a gentleman came in and I asked if he could smell it also. He replied that he could We started to get an officer, but a waiter appeared and we called him. He smelt about a few seconds and then jumped for a stateroom door and opened it quickly. Inside was a woman clothed in something, I guess maybe it was a bed sheet. She had accidentally burned her hair while curling it and the smoke had made us fear that the ship was on fire Buck Weems.

PLEASED THE AUDIENCE.

Harry Morrison Gave His Story on His Trip Abroad.

From the Daily of Wednesday.

Harry Steele Morrison, the boy traveler, in a boyish manner, with boyish frankness and with no attempt at exaggeration, told the interesting story of his personal struggles and schemes on his European tour, starting from Chicago with $25 and a railroad pass to New York Nobody put the idea into his head He just concluded that an energetic American boy could make the trip and work his way through in some manner, and he started on the journey, overcoming all obstacles. He got across the pond by washing dishes eight hours a day, and when he reached London he worked in a shop for his board. He had been written up in New York by the papers and his fame had preceded him across the Atlantic He wrote stories for the London papers and the American boy became pretty well known He had said before starting from New York that he would interview Gladstone and he accomplished the task, besides getting the Grand Old Man to write a letter by which he was later enabled to get an audience with Queen Victoria. Then he had a talk with the lord mayor of London On his foot journey through Germany he saw Emperor William, and viewed the beauties of the Rhine. He had an audience with King Leopold of Belgium, and in Switzerland walked in on the president of the Republic and had talk with him about American and European affairs He was not favorably impressed with the people of eastern France but found Paris delightful. He had no disguise himself as a stylishly dressed German count in order to face President Faure, who received him kindly and doubtless marveled at his nerve when the boy frankly confessed what he had done to gain admission to the palace The band had played for him and a double file of soldiers had saluted him as he approached the palace. It was all done by order of President Faure, who supposed that his distinguished looking visitor with the boyish manner and red hair was really a member of the royal gang While on the continent Harry wrote letters for a London paper, but got no remittance All his earnings in that way were withheld until he got back to London much to his discomfort, but he managed to get around, though when he left London he had but $15 Throughout the story of the merry journey, many little incidents were related, all serving to rivet the attention of the audience Harry on his return to London, wrote more articles describing his trip, and earned enough money to return to America as a first class cabin passenger He does not advise boys to attempt the trip he made It was full of trials and many times he was about to give up, but he resolved to get through some way and he did Now he is attached to the staff of the New York World and will tour America as a lecturer under the management of Major Pond. His home is at Mattoon, where his mother is an invalid

NEW RIVER BOAT

Dr. Benj. Brown Appears as an Inventor.

HE HAS SECURED PATENTS

For a Boat Which He Claims Will Revolutionize River Travel—Is Conferring with Boat Builders.

Dr. Benj. Brown of Chicago, who is now in the city, has just completed taking out patent papers for a new steamboat which he has invented and which he claims will revolutionize the navigation on such waters as canals and the Mississippi river. The invention is one on which Dr. Brown has been working for many years past. He has now finished his work and has had the invention covered by patent rights.

The invention is that of a steam boat for rivers and shallow bodies of water which will make faster time than any boat which has ever been used The old boats used on the Mississippi river are propelled by a stern wheel. Dr Brown's boat as shown by the working drawings, is so constructed that the bow and stern stand out above the water. The middle part of the bottom of the boat is lower than the bow and stern and rests in the water. Instead of being propelled by a wheel the boat is moved along by an endless chain on which are little paddles. The chain runs under the bottom of the boat through the water and then goes up through the upper part of the boat just under the upper deck The paddles are 12 inches in depth and extend from one side of the boat to the other and are set a short distance apart. As the boat moves up stream against the current the resistance of the water is met by the paddles which cut through and carry the boat along The endless chain is ball bearing and is made to move by an engine in the rear of the boat The endless chain is made up of little wheels which run on a track.

In the old style boats there is a great resistance from the water. Dr Brown claims that herein rests the advantage of his boat. He says that his boat does away with all resistance of the water as the bow and stern set above the water line and the boat glides over the water against the current. He also claims that there is no vibration felt in the boat, and that it will move faster than any river boat which has yet been constructed.

Dr Brown has had a handsome model, four feet long made to show the workings of his boat and he expects soon to give an exhibition in Chicago. He has received one offer from a boat builder, but he is now conferring with a number of others with the view of having the boat built. Dr. Brown says that his invention represents years of his thought and study and he thinks that he now has a boat which will materially change the navigation of rivers.

It will be noted that not much has been heard from the fellows in congress who want to pass belligerent resolutions in regard to Cuba for at least two weeks. The chances are they have discovered that things in relation to Cuba are progressing in a better way.

It is about four years since the silver people trotted out those awe-inspiring and delusive tables claiming to show that the price of wheat keeps pace with the price of silver. Wheat was then worth 64¾. Thus the four years' practical test of those tables has given results precisely the reverse of the showing made by them, since silver has fallen 15 per cent meantime, while wheat has nearly doubled.

The fact that congress has just appropriated $50,000,000 for national defense, and has the actual cash in gold in the treasury to use for that purpose, indicates that the "endless chain" is not ruining the finances of the country now. The truth is the Republican party never had any use for the "endless chain" in federal finances either as an excuse for shortcomings or in the running gears of a financial theory.

The labor commissioner of New York in a report just published, states that the price of farm lands in that state has depreciated very largely in the past five or six years, and says that many of the reports of his correspondents indicate that crops have fallen from 10 to 75 per cent in that period. This fall in value, it will be observed, is coincident with—not the "crime of '73," which occurred 25 years ago, but the "crime of '93," by which the people elected a free trade president and free trade congress.

Those people who are for war because they think war will make business better will be disappointed when war comes. If any war could make business better it was our civil war, because at least three million men were called from the ranks of the people into the field, which greatly increased the demand for labor and products. The facts are, however, that measured by gold wages increased but little, if any. Prosperity did not come to the country until the country began to recover from the effects of the war and got on a sound money basis.

St Louis Globe-Democrat: "Spain is a proud nation," said the timid people who opposed war preparations by the United States, "and she is merely waiting for a pretext to attack us." Let us see how this pretense stands in the light of facts. The McKinley administration told Spain that Weyler was a barbarian, and wanted her to remove him. She removed him. The administration told her to recall De Lome and apologize for him. She issued the recall and the apology. The administration insisted, contrary to Spain's expressed desire for a joint investigation of the Maine disaster, on an independent investigation by the United States. She acquiesced. The administration denied Spain's request for the recall of General Lee. She withdrew her request. For a proud and bloodthirsty nation Spain has done a good deal of surrendering to the United States recently.

Uncle Sam.

After the fall of Richmond President Lincoln visited the city, where he was treated as a god by the ex-slaves, who followed his carriage, surrounding it, as it was driven along the streets, shouting praise to God and "Massa Lincoln." At a praise meeting of colored people held after the president left the city the brothers and sisters, one after another, tried to tell how they were impressed by seeing the great liberator. After many had spoken an old exhorter arose and said: "Brederin and Sesters, you all don't know nothing about de greatness of 'Massa Lincoln.' He just walk de earth like de Lord."

The Republican party has great leaders, and the Democratic party has great leaders for whom their respective followers shout in the heat of campaigns, but greater than any or all of these is the American mythical character we call "Uncle Sam." The artist has been inspired to paint his picture and so common has that likeness become that even the smallest child recognizes the character as soon as he sees the picture. As the artist has tried to picture him so others may try to describe him, but as the old colored man felt as to Lincoln, so it is impossible to describe Uncle Sam. He walks the earth just like the Lord. Uncle Sam is the character, in this greatest of all Republics, who rises above party in times when the nation is in peril or its honor is assailed. Uncle Sam is the embodiment of the patriotism of a free and responsible people.

For several years this nation has done its best to avoid being drawn into a conflict with Spain over the Cuban rebellion. There has been a wide difference in opinion as to whether the United States should interfere in the interest of the Cubans. Spain has become more and more arrogant, until, finally, the representative of Spain insulted the nation in a letter which became public and resigned to avoid being ordered out of the country. Following close upon this comes the destruction of the Maine and the death of nearly 300 American seamen in the harbor of Havana. Pending an investigation into the destruction of the warship and the men, the administration began preparations for war. The time came when the president intimated that he would like to have at his disposal $50,000,000 for national defense and congress responded by appropriating that amount without a dissenting voice. All party divisions vanished before the dazzling glory of Uncle Sam as he appeared and "walked the earth like the Lord." As one of our representatives put it: "No country on earth would seek to avoid war as this country does. No country on earth need fear war less than America." It need not fear war because it is a country of freemen, who know the responsibilities which go with freedom and are ready when it becomes necessary to defend the country with armies of freemen instead of armies of conscripts and whose glory is Uncle Sam, who is the nation's pillar of cloud by day and pillar of fire by night.

Wise Words.

A gentleman in this city received a letter from one of our leading members of congress and a man whose judgment is never swerved by passion and who cannot be dragooned into a false position by any sort of clamor, in which he says:

"Our Republicans at home are very foolish in finding fault with the president because he won't act the hot headed fool and rush the country into war without preparation. They forget that while we have 70,000,000 people and many thousand miles of seacoast, we have only about army enough to make a single army corps, and a small navy, too small to protect our coast and our merchant vessels on the high seas. It takes time to get ready, and the time is being well used. We need 30 days more time and must have it unless Spain begins the shooting sooner. The fellows most noisy at home will require a good deal of time and very liberal bounties before they reach the point of volunteering when the time comes. Louis Napoleon lost his throne by yielding to the noisy clamor of the French for war with Prussia, when the French army was not ready for war. Lincoln was bitterly denounced because he wouldn't free the slaves at once, but he was wiser than those who denounced him—he did it at the proper time to make the act effective. McKinley knows what actual war is, and he knows that a good regiment may be whipped by a poor one by rushing into a fight without proper preparation. Too many of our people talk and act as if the Yankee nation was ready for a fight every day in the year, when the fact is that no nation of our size is more unready than we are every day in the year.

"Of course we need not fear an actual invasion by the foot soldiers of any nation, but on the seas there are several nations that would be able to humiliate us greatly before we could muster force enough to protect ourselves. We are taking steps to put $50,000,000 at the command of the president to provide for the national defense, and when the time comes when further action is wise congress and the president will be found a unit in acting. I believe it will end in war, and that is the general belief here now. When it comes we want to be so ready as to make it short, sharp and decisive. We don't want to waste ourselves in frothy vaporings about our powers as the Johnnies did in the first days of the confederacy. "Brag is a good dog, but Holdfast is better."

Pledges Fulfilled.

Rochester Chronicle-Telegraph: We have a tariff law that has built up home industries wonderfully and is proving a magnificent success as a revenue producer. We have business activity, financial confidence, money in free circulation, and a treasury overloaded with gold. All government securities command a high premium, and the national credit is gilt-edged. An immigration law is well under way. The annexation of Hawaii will soon be accomplished. The Cuban question has been skillfully handled, and American influence has sent Weyler home and forced a modification of Spain's brutal war policy. The conspicuous national need, a bankruptcy law, seems in a fair way to be supplied. As for the currency, nothing was promised in the platform but the maintenance of the gold standard and that pledge is fulfilled. The only danger is that pernicious activity in the way of "reform" will do more harm than good; but, happily, congress seems disposed to handle this subject with the utmost deliberation, and both the country and the party are to be congratulated on its policy of "masterly inactivity."

End of the Cotton Strike.

American Economist: The strike of eastern cotton mill operatives, which began January 17, was practically ended last week, the King Philip Mills at Fall River, Mass., resuming work on the 21st ultimo, and others more or less promptly following. The mill owners made no concessions, adhering to their original determination to reduce wages, and the operatives were compelled to yield through exhaustion of their financial resources.

The closing of the eastern cotton mills unfortunately occurred at a time when nearly every other branch of industry in the country was prospering. The results of the previous year's business in almost all lines of trade had been generally satisfactory. The country was enriched through the marketing of its wheat and other crops at high prices; money was abundant; the utmost confidence was felt in the maintenance of the gold standard; American manufacturing enterprise had successfully invaded foreign fields; manufacturers were hopeful of still more encouraging results in the current year; the benefits of the policy of protection to American industries were daily growing more manifest, and the year opened with every indication of its being the most prosperous ever experienced.

Therefore the strike of the eastern cotton operatives was an extremely unfortunate event. It gave opportunity for the opponents of President McKinley's administration and the enemies of the protective policy to assert, with some semblance of truth, that the prosperous conditions which were expected to follow, and which really did follow, the inauguration of the new administration had not been so general as had been represented. The spectacle was presented of depression in an important industry, while other industries were enjoying a comparatively high degree of prosperity. Unreasoning and unreasonable critics boldly asserted that the protective policy was directly responsible for this depression in the cotton industry.

There were, however, economic causes for the depression which, when carefully examined, will show why this industry was exceptionally affected. The most potent factor contributing to the depression was the decreased consumption of coarse goods. Manufacturers of fine goods, however, were not affected. Indeed, eastern mills which produced the finer grades of goods found a ready market for their products, and they were prosperous.

The prosperity which was enjoyed in other parts of the country was, of itself, one important factor contributing to the depression in certain grades of goods. Distributors of cheap cotton dress fabrics found that the demand for them had gradually subsided. The direct consumers of goods had discovered more desirable and more attractive substitutes in silk and in woolen and cotton mixtures for the other styles of cotton dress goods. These consumers were apparently no longer content to wear cheap material; the styles had changed and more extravagant tastes had been cultivated.

Notwithstanding this change in the requirements of the trade, however, many of the mills made no effort to change their grades or styles of goods.

They continued to produce coarse fabrics, with the inevitable result of oversupplying the market. They hoped, from time to time, to work off accumulations of stocks in various ways. They almost constantly looked for something which would stimulate the demand for coarse goods; and therefore they continued to manufacture them. Finally they attempted to require their operatives to bear part of the burden of loss by submitting to a reduction of wages. The employes resisted and the strike followed.

The closing of the mills was in the interest of the mill owners for thereby they were enabled to apply the only remedy which could then be applied—the limitation of production. The market for print cloths gradually grew steadier though without any material advance in price, and accumulated stocks at the east were slightly reduced. The situation at the end showed only a slight improvement compared with that at the beginning of the strike. It seems probable, therefore, that disturbing conditions will prevail until some radical remedy for the depression in this industry shall be applied. The remedy which seems most effective—that of changing over the New England plants to the production of the finer and costlier grades and of leaving to the southern mills the monopoly of weaving the coarser and cheaper goods—has already been suggested by the Economist but will be considered more in detail in another article.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Honesty and Virtue.

There is more honesty and virtue contained in a bottle of Salvation Oil, than in any other liniment known. "Mrs. A. Fiedler, 2864 Palethorp St., Philadelphia, Pa., confirms this truth: She found Salvation Oil to be an excellent remedy for rheumatism, stiff joints, bruises, etc., and thinks it should always be kept in the house." Don't listen to the dealer's arguments in favor of a substitute. Insist on getting Salvation Oil, it costs only 25 cts.

PROBATE OF WILL

Of the Late Mrs. Ida A. Downing.

W. T. DOWNING EXECUTOR

And Is Also Named as Trustee—Estate Valued at About $35,000 —Executor's Bond, $70,000.

From the Daily of Friday.

The will of the late Mrs. Ida A. Downing was admitted to probate by Judge Hammer in the county court today. The husband of the deceased, W. T. Downing, is named as executor and also as trustee, having the right to handle all the property. He gave bond in the sum of $70,000, and according to the specifications of the will is not required to give security on the bond. Everything is left to W. T. Downing in trust.

The will provides that the homestead of 16½ acres north of the city shall be held in trust by Mr. Downing as a homestead for himself, the mother of the deceased, Mrs. Susan V. Williamson, and for the three children, Clifford O., Anna Maud and William Poyntell Downing. The place shall be a home for the mother and husband for their natural lives and for the children until they attain the age of 21 and if they are not married until the age of 30. Anna Maud, if she marries, can live at the homestead with her husband, if the father is willing.

To W. T. Downing is also left in trust all personal property aside from money and credits; also the following real estate: Twenty acres off the south side of the northwest quarter of 2, 15, 2 east, the remainder the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 2, excepting the homestead place of 16½ acres, a lot in Enterprise addition, a lot in H. A. Wood's addition, a lot in Riverside and all other real estate. The trustee is directed to sell all the real estate excepting the homestead and loan the money on good property, pay all taxes and assessments and keep the homestead place in good order. The amount of $1200 is to be set aside each year for the family expenses. When a child leaves the home place the amount is to be reduced $800 and if the father in his judgment sees fit he can give that amount each year to the child living away from home. From the amount secured from the sale of real estate $500 is to be set aside for each child and put out at interest until the child attains the age of 30 when he or she shall receive the $5000 and accumulation. But first an amount which shall bring in an income of $600 for the husband must be set aside. The will declares that this money is not subject to any debts of the husband, the purpose being that he shall have an income during his lifetime.

In the event of the death of W. T. Downing before Clifford O. Downing attains the age of 21, L. L. Burrows is appointed trustee and the executor until such time as Clifford Downing becomes of age. The will was witnessed by Dennis Bradley, Ernest Lytle and James C. Lake.

THE MURDER OF M'KINLEY.

History of the Crime Which is Charged Against Joe Mauzy.

The story of the murder of Mat McKinley is familiar to many but on account of the trial which is soon to take place the details of the crime are of interest.

McKinley was shot on the evening of July 3, 1889, at a point near the alley between Wood and Main streets on Franklin street where Andy Dunston's barn now stands. At the time of the murder a barn stood on the site. Mrs. Mary Griffith and Mrs. Rebecca Smith were passing south on the east side of the street. When they reached the alley a small man with a smoothly shaven face stopped and addressed Mrs. Griffin by the name of Ida. The women paid no attention to him and then the man used insulting language. Mat McKinley was passing on the other side of the street and the women saw him and called to him. They continued down the street while McKinley crossed over, and when the women were, according to their statements, about 40 feet away when the shot was fired. Barney McKinley, a brother of Mat, was the first to reach the place and found the wounded man sitting with his back against the barn. There was a small wound over the right eye which had evidently been inflicted by a blow and a bullet wound in the breast. McKinley died in a few minutes. It was thought by persons who were in the neighborhood that a man was seen running east through the alley. A search was made and in the alley about 80 feet from the street Attorney McDonald and William Schimmerhorn found a revolver. It was a 38-calibre and one chamber was empty. One man was arrested and taken before the women, but they could not identify him as the person who accosted them. Later the police decided that Jack Faunce was the man who had done the shooting and they arrested him in John Dipper's saloon at about 11 o'clock. His clothes did not tally with the description given by the women, but his general build answered the description very well.

The coroner's inquest was not held until the following Tuesday. The investigation of the jury was held secretly. Mrs. Smith was not certain about Faunce being the man but Mrs. Griffith was more positive about it. D. J. Williams, who, however, did not appear in the trial, testified before the coroner's jury that he saw Faunce follow the women, heard them call for help and also heard the shot fired. Later he gave a clue to Mrs. Oliphant, who proved to be one of the most important witnesses in the case. The coroner's jury was in session three days and then returned a verdict holding Faunce for the murder. The coroner's jury was composed of Reuben Brownlee, F. L. Wood, Jacob Sine, I. N. Martin, J. S. Howes and A. O. Bolen.

The trial of Faunce began on October 29 and continued for a number of days. Faunce was defended by Attorney Joe Burres and Attorney I. D. Walker, both of whom are now dead, and Attorney Fred Brown, who is now living at Tacoma, Wash. State's Attorney I. R. Mills prosecuted. When the case went to the jury they were out for one day and then returned a verdict fixing Faunce's punishment as life imprisonment. The members of the jury who convicted Faunce were as follows: Hillary Beall, Niantic; William Beall, Illini; Howard Glossford, Maroa; J. E. Trimmer, Hickory Point; W. O. Rich, Decatur; A. J. Dillinger, Hickory Point; Thomas Gabriel, Blue Mound; J. P. Elkin, Decatur; Frank Martin, Niantic; George Culbertson, William Highly and Alonzo Duval, Macon.

It has always been claimed by Mauzy's friends that he was in front of the jail at the time of the murder and that he went with his father and another man to the scene of the crime. Mrs. Mauzy, the mother of the accused, made a statement to that effect when Sheriff Nicholson made the arrest.

THE DEAD BODY

Of Willey Royston Found This Morning

AT THE EWING RESIDENCE

In the Yard Near the House—Had Been Employed as a Nurse in the Family for Many Years.

From the Daily of Saturday.

The dead body of Miss Willey A. Royston, an elderly woman, was found at 9:30 o'clock this morning in the front yard of the Ewing residence on Forest avenue. The body was near the house and the woman had evidently fallen off the porch. The deceased had been employed as a nurse in the Ewing family for the past 15 years.

It is not known at just what time or in what manner Miss Royston met her death. M. J. McCauly, a man who is employed about the place, had been working about the barn until 9:30 o'clock, when he came around the side of the house and found Miss Royston lying close to the west end of the large porch, which extends across the north side of the house. He did not known she was dead and picking her up carried her into the house and aroused the family. Mrs. Dr. Grimes was called, but the woman was dead when she was found. Miss Royston had been in the habit of arising at 4 o'clock in the morning before the other occupants of the house were awake and this morning she was not missed until found in the yard. It is thought beyond a doubt that she fell off the porch. The railing is very low and the porch was slippery and it would be an easy matter for any one if they were leaning over the railing to fall. The top of the railing is about eight feet from the ground. The only mark on the body was a wound on the forehead which had evidently been caused by the head striking the ground in the fall. The ground had been disturbed where the feet struck.

Coroner Bendure and Deputy Coroner Roy Bendure were called and went to the Ewing residence this afternoon to investigate the case. An examination of Miss Royston's room did not throw any light on the matter. There was no evidence of her having been ill nor of any attempt at suicide. It is thought that she simply was feeling ill and went out on the porch for fresh air and was stricken with an attack of heart disease and fell over the railing. Dr. Grimes is of the opinion that the death was due to heart disease and not to the fall. Miss Royston had been in feeble health for some time past and had been rapidly failing.

Miss Royston was deaf and dumb, but she had been a faithful servant in the Ewing family, having been employed by Mrs. Ewing as nurse for her children for the past 10 years.

Death of a Child.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs C. E. Surface died of hydrosis Wednesday at the family home, 1174 East Herkimer street, aged seven days. The funeral took place this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the residence and the burial was at Greenwood cemetery.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Albert St. Clair died last night at the family residence in the 1500 block on North Church street. The time of the funeral has not been decided upon.

All Trains Looked Alike.

A well known groceryman on North Water street is telling his friends how fond he is of outdoor exercise and especially of walking. He made a business trip to Mattoon one day last last week and went down to the station to take the train for Decatur. He climbed onto a train going south and settled down comfortably for his ride home. The collector came in and when he looked at the ticket handed him by Mr. Groceryman he suggested a walk of four miles back to Mattoon in time to get the Decatur train was the only way he might hope to reach home that evening. Mr. Groceryman decided to take the walk and the train was stopped. He made a record as a pedestrian on the return trip to Mattoon, but he caught his train for Decatur.

Big Dogs Coming.

Manager Van Gilt of the big dog show, March 25 and 26, in the Powers block, next to the elevator entrance, states that 18 splendid St. Bernard dogs from Normal will be in the exhibit.

The largest dog in the world will come from the west, and the smallest dog, owned in Decatur, will be a feature.

Charles M. Steele of Decatur was the first to enter a dog. It is a thoroughbred Cocker spaniel.

Harry L. Oldham will be one of the judges.

Mr. Cope for Town Clerk.

Albert H Cope, who is announced elsewhere in these columns as a candidate for the office of town clerk, has held the office for one term and has made a careful and efficient clerk. His services to the party have always been freely given and as it is generally conceded where one has filled this office satisfactorily for one year he should be allowed to succeed himself without opposition, it is hardly probable that any one can be induced to actively oppose him at this time.

Al is well known and has the friendship of the people among both the business men and the workmen, he having been engaged in the contracting business here for 14 years. We are satisfied that the party will make no mistake in giving him the nomination.

SHOT HIMSELF.

Suicide of Charles H. Childs Last Evening.

THE CORONER'S INQUEST

Was Held This Afternoon at 2 O'clock at Wykoff & Reeve Undertaking Rooms—Jury Impaneled This Morning.

From the Daily of Saturday.

The inquest over the body of Charles H. Childs, who committed suicide last evening, was held at Wykoff and Reeve's undertaking rooms this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mr. Childs committed suicide at 6:45 o'clock last evening by shooting himself in the head. The act was committed at the Calhoun street crossing of the Champaign branch of the Illinois Central railroad. The deceased was well known in Decatur. He was an insurance agent and leaves a wife, two children, and a mother, aged 81 years, and a sister, Mrs. T. L. Evans. He made his home at 915 North Union street. Despondency is supposed to be the cause.

Mr. Childs was born in Urbana, Ohio, and was married 18 years ago in Sandusky. He came to Decatur about 10 years ago and for a time was bookkeeper for a publishing company. After living in the city four years he went to Michigan and then to Chicago and returned to Decatur in 1894. He was solicitor and bookkeeper for the firm of Lewis & Moore. After these parties sold out to Eaton & Lanning, Mr. Childs remained with the firm and about a year with Will Ayers bought out the business. With his partner Mr. Childs conducted an insurance and real estate business. The relatives and friends of Mr. Childs think that he was despondent on account of ill health and bad collections.

Mr. Childs went to the depot about 5 o'clock last evening and rode on a Vandalia freight engine to the point where the Champaign line branches off and then walked toward the northeast. When he reached Calhoun street he was seen by persons in the neighborhood to draw a revolver and aim at a telegraph pole and fire. He was evidently testing the revolver. He then put the pistol to his right ear and fired. Several witnessed the act. Mrs. Caroline Disney, living in the neighborhood, saw Mr Childs fire at the pole, but did not see him shoot himself. James Hise, living at 1599 North Railroad avenue, had been ill and was sitting at the window. He saw the man shoot himself. Officers Holser and Welty were in the neighborhood and when they arrived Mr. Childs was not yet dead, but he expired in a few moments. The patrol wagon was called and on the orders of Coroner Bendure the body was removed to Wykoff and Reeve's undertaking room, where James Moran took charge of it.

The revolver with which Mr. Childs killed himself was a Harrington and Richardson 32 calibre. Deputy Coroner Roy Bendure made an investigation and it was found that it had been purchased Friday afternoon from Young's pawn shop. Mrs Childs and the other members of the family were prostrated with grief when the news of the suicide was taken to the home.

THE INQUEST.

The inquest over the body of C. H. Childs was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the undertaking rooms of Wykoff and Reeve. The witnesses were James Hise, who witnessed the suicide, D Young, the pawn broker, who sold the revolver to Mr. Childs, Officer W. H. Holser, who was one of the first to reach the man, and J. R Dougherty, who had a conversation yesterday afternoon with the deceased.

The following jury was impaneled at 10 o'clock this morning by Deputy Coroner Roy Bendure: Dr. J. H. Eddy, P. A. Adams, Fred Miller, Arthur Hendricks, C. F. Cook and C. R. Spooner.

The remains were taken this forenoon from the undertaking rooms to the residence on North Union street. The time of the funeral will be announced later.

DISAPPEARED.

A Young Farmer Near Oakley Cannot be Found.

From the Daily of Saturday.

Matt Stewart of Oakley has not been seen for one week and his friends are very much alarmed about him. Mr. Stewart is a well known young farmer and lived with a family near Oakley. One week ago yesterday he started away, saying he was going to visit a neighbor and although he did not return that evening as he had intended nothing was thought of it as he frequently stayed with this neighbor all night. He has not been seen or heard of since. It was found that the family he started to visit had moved away the week before and it is feared that he started home the same evening and was drowned in trying to cross the river on some driftwood that was sometimes used as a crossing when the river was low. The river will be searched for his body.

Out for Assessor.

Captain W W. Foster is today announced as a candidate for township assessor, subject to the action of the Republican convention. He seems to have a clear field. He made a good assessment last spring, and in printing to his record says: "I lowered the assessment of every poor man in the township, and you can say also that I paid my office rent and hold the receipt for the same. The county has the money." Captain Foster has his coat off and will go into the fight to win, no matter how many opponents appear.

Wabash Chief Officials.

The Pittsburg (Pa.) Press of February 91 last, contained the following:

"A hobby which two officials on the Wabash have pursued jointly with considerable zeal in the management of passenger traffic, was paid a high compliment during the week. All the railroaders and newspaper men who come into contact with Joseph Ramsey, Jr., vice president, and C. S. Crane, general passenger agent, of the Wabash, appreciate the graceful courtesy and demeanor by which the two gentlemen are distinguished. It seems that they rigidly exact this same considerate bearing from their employes, and a Pittsburger who has just been over the lines gives evidence that the punctilious politeness of Messrs. Ramsey and Crane are reflected in a large degree throughout the ranks of their subordinates. The tourist in question said the Wabash was justly noteworthy for the general courtesy and propriety manifested by employees along the line; in the care of uniform and general personal appearance, prompt and gentlemanly response to wants of passengers, and the careful execution of orders relating to the ease and safety of unescorted ladies."

The Wabash has always had a wide reputation for the strict enforcement of discipline among its army of trainmen, and the compliment paid the system will no doubt prove gratifying to the officials and friends of the line.

In Memory of Miss Willard.

From the Daily of Saturday.

The members of the Decatur Juvenile Temple held services in memory of the late Frances Willard at their hall in the Library building at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. Attorney D. L. Bonn was in charge of the singing and Miss Ethel Gordon presided at the piano. Several selections which were favorites of Miss Willard's were sung. A recitation was given by Miss May Coleman and there were short talks on Miss Willard's attitude toward the debt of the W. C. T. U. temple, her attitude toward Catholics and Hebrews and her attitude toward all political parties. Rev. A. W. Hawkins delivered an address on the life and works of Miss Willard.

Found in a Cow Shed.

From the Daily of Saturday

There is now at the county jail a young man named Michael Haurahy, who was found yesterday in a cow shed on a farm near Boody. The boy was only partly dressed and had been sleeping on the board floor behind the cows. He was brought to Boody and held there until Deputy Sheriff Sam Stabler arrived and took charge of him. The boy was quiet, but at times he wandered in his conversation. He told the officer that his father and mother lived in Chicago and that he had come from that city to Litchfield and was on his way back, having heard that his parents were injured in an accident. The officers think that the boy has escaped from some asylum. A letter has been written to the parents at the address given and the boy will be kept in custody until something is heard from them.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary.

Valuable Ring Stolen.

Moreland Moyer lost a very valuable signet ring in his father's restaurant a few days ago. He removed the ring to wash his hands at the sink at the rear of the restaurant and laid it down on the sink, forgetting to put it on when he had finished washing. When he remembered to look for it the ring was gone. He is confident that he knows the party who was in the restaurant and took the ring from the sink and it is his purpose to make serious trouble for some one if the ring is not returned.

SKIPPED THE TOWN

T. A. Cleage, Grain Dealer. Has Disappeared.

WAS ARRESTED YESTERDAY

For Embezzlement but Settled and Left the City Last Night, Leaving Behind Debts—He Had a Roll of Money.

From the Daily of Thursday.

T. A. Cleage, a grain dealer, who had offices on the second floor of the Fenton block, left the city last night, leaving behind unpaid debts. He was arrested about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon for embezzlement just as he was trying to get away, and after settling the matter he managed to get away on a later train This morning the furniture in the office had been moved out.

Mr. Cleage came to Decatur and opened his offices last December. He was from that time until the fourth of March the local representative of T. E. Price and Company, grain dealers of St. Louis. During that time Cleage seemed to do a good business. Since severing his connection with the firm of T. E. Price and Company he has been dealing with Donavan and Company, also of St. Louis. It now appears that he has not been paying his customers when they made successful deals, and that he has been inducing men of moderate means to patronize him. One of his victims was Albret Kringler, a young man who drives a grocery wagon. Cleage owed Kringler about $24 which he refused to pay on the grounds that Kringler had lost on another deal. Kringler, in order to get his money, swore out a state warrant against Cleage charging him with embezzlement and the warrant was put in the hands of Constable John Lloyd for service.

The constable was just in time to capture Cleage for the latter was leaving the Fenton building with the evident intention of taking a car and getting to the depot in time to catch the afternoon train to St. Louis. Lloyd, however, stopped Cleage and served the warrant on him and then took his man to the office of Justice Smith. Cleage told several different stories in regard to the money. At the office of the justice he said that he could furnish bond and the constable went out with him and Cleage began his hunt for bondsmen. It was evident to the constable that the prisoner was not going to find any bondsmen so he told his man that he must either pay up or else go to jail. Cleage decided that it would be best to pay so he handed over the $24 and was released. Constable Lloyd says that when Cleage paid he had a big roll of money which included several $20 bills. There is another young man whom Cleage owes $60 who intended to swear out a warrant this morning.

Early last evening the furniture in Cleage's office, consisting of chairs and several tables, was moved out, but just what was done with it is not known. Cleage himself left at 7:30 p. m. on the St. Louis train. He leaves behind him a number of unpaid debts. The operator, who was employed by Cleage in his office, says that a part of his wages has not been paid and that he understood that Cleage owed one man between $200 and $300. Cleage evidently thought that the best thing for him to do since his creditors had begun pushing him was to get out of town. Those who owed will probably never get any of their money for it is not likely that Cleage will come back to Decatur soon again.

THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1898.

Treasury receipts continue to exceed a million dollars a day on an average.

February bank clearings showed an increase of 50 per cent over those of February, 1897, and were the largest ever recorded by those of May and October, 1890, December, 1892, and January, 1898.

The only kind of a battleship known that is in danger of being blown up by accident is the three torpedo silver plated monitor known as the Popocratic party, should it ever reach a port.

In case there is no war with Spain the $50,000,000 for national defense will have been well spent and may help to prevent other rash threats such as Spain has made.

It is said that "money talks." With those sent out to corrupt the Cuban leaders with money the latter failed to talk at all and the bearers had but few minutes left them to talk before they landed in eternity.

One thing in the Cuban troubles is settled. That is that the policy of the administration is not governed by the endless chain which Grover Cleveland kept on exhibition as the cause of all the financial troubles that characterized his administration.

The professional political Prohibitionist don't know yet whether to appear in the coming campaign in his original role or as a free silver Democrat and as a matter of fact the country cares little about him, because he has so little regard for himself along the line of consistency.

Ordinarily in case of a pending conflict there is little to be gained by getting ready as two sides usually can play at the game of getting ready, but in the case of Spain it is probably true that her finances are in such a distressing state that she cannot get ready as rapidly as the United States.

Farm mortgages to the amount of $12,-088,600, were filed in Nebraska in 1890, the year of Mr. Bryan's nomination, and others to the amount of $11,898,000 were released. In 1897 the farm mortgages filed amounted to $11,814,000, and the releases $14,787,000. And all this has happened without the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

The last week of the first year of President McKinley's administration brings many gratifying comments, notably among them a comparison made by Dun's Review in regard to the failures of the month. It says: "Failures in February have been smaller than in any other month except three of the previous 52 months with a remarkable decrease in the failures for $100,000 and over."

Were Mr. Bryan president, to have performed the same work, congress would have been compelled to appropriate nearly three times 50 million dollars as the dollars, except gold dollars, would be worth but a little over 40 cents. There would be no gold dollars in sight and to get them to buy ships bonds and gold bonds at that would have to be sold to get gold.

The only people in the Cuban controversy who are not troubled with hesitation and diplomacy are the Cuban patriots themselves. They are not slow to answer and reject every proposition that embodies a compromise. With them it is "liberty or death" a sentiment our own people are proud to attribute to our forefathers, who fought for the freedom of the 13 colonies.

In 1892 the Democratic national convention declared in favor of sound money and assigned as a reason that a cheap dollar always injured the farmer and the wage earner. Grover Cleveland in a short time will speak in Chicago and tell all about this. The reason for this is that the Democratic party is now in favor of cheap money, claiming it is just the thing for the farmer and the wage earner. This condition of things has but one parallel, namely, that the Democratic party opposed the war to put down the rebellion and then, in the campaign of 1860 claimed that more Democrats than Republicans were in the Union army.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: In the March number of the Forum ex-Governor Stone has an article on "The Democratic Party and its Future," which most of the readers will be apt to think is rather thin, but which is savagely assailed by a few gold Democratic papers. The Hartford Times, for example, says "this Missouri Populist disguised as a Democrat froths at the mouth" against trusts and monopolies, and it points out that the worst trust in the country, the silver trust, dictated the platform and candidate of Bryan's party in 1896. The same paper tells the ex-governor that what he calls bimetallism is "no more a Democratic doctrine than are transcontinental stage coach lines or the use of warming pans by people who have stoves and furnaces in their houses." On the other hand Bryan remarked the other day in Topeka that "if Judas had organized a party he would have been as much justified in calling it the party of the Savior as the gold Democrats are in styling themselves the Democratic party." It is clear that the auctions of 1896 in the history of Democracy are to be repeated in 1900. That affiliation of the Cleveland and Palmer end of the party with the Republicans may as well be made permanent.

Yankee Goods in Europe.

Chicago Times-Herald: Louis Ehrle is back from England with $1,000,000 worth of orders for American made goods as the result of ten weeks' work. He says that the selling of Yankee products in the mother country is as easy as the showing of the goods, and that the prices current in the United States are from 10 to 15 per cent lower than in England, despite the fact that American wages are much higher.

"It seems to me that one of the main reasons for the improvement in the times is due to the vast increase of importations," said Mr. Ehrle. "I was amazed at the success had in selling goods made in Chicago and the east. The English are crazy after our wares. The manufacturers there are quickly learning they cannot compete with the United States' shops. We can undersell them on the very things they have been shipping here or half a century. The English buyers insist on having American goods, and there are many signs that the United States is rapidly becoming master of the world in matters of commerce. This is the reason for much of the foreign legislation which is aimed against American industry and importations from America.

"This demand for American goods is not confined to any one line. My orders embrace at least a dozen varieties and include leather goods, carriages and wagons, hardware, brass bedsteads, furniture, essential oils, iron and brass rivets and buttons, and canned fruits. The exportation business of this country is only in its infancy, and the tide of sales abroad has just set in. This is to be the salvation of the country. We have been manufacturing more than we could consume. The creation of a great outlet to England and the continent will open all the mills and put all the idle at work.

"England is looking more and more to America for its largest supplies in food products. I am planning to ship a load of fresh fruit next month—the first consignment of the kind—to Liverpool. The ship will be loaded with bananas, oranges, pineapples and the like. I visited Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Glasgow and other ports of importance, and I want to tell the manufacturers of the United States that all they have to do to sell their goods on the other side is to show them. They can get the same prices that they do at home and still beat the English competitors by a good margin. The same feeling concerning American goods is 'spreading' through Paris and France. We can beat them in the cost price because we have the best machinery on the globe, and our labor is more intelligent and works under higher inspiration. The bulk of the exportation orders which I brought home will be filled right here in Chicago."

All Praise McKinley.

Albany Journal: The administration is a success, and is receiving the support of the American people

Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette: The first year has been finished of President McKinley's administration, and the condition in which it finds the country affords a happy contrast to that which preceded it.

Rochester Post-Express: As the year ends, we may say, "Well done, good and faithful servant. You have restored the prosperities and cherished the honor of the republic. Go on in the way you have begun, and the people will be with you to the end."

Kansas City Journal: At the end of one year's service, President McKinley can look back upon a phenomenal revival of business, a restoration of domestic content, and, barring the possibilities of war, the brightest prospect upon which this country has looked in years.

Baltimore American: He and his associates are confronted with international problems of the gravest character. That he will act wisely and for the best interests of the whole people can be judged from his past record. Have faith in the president of the United States. Be assured that he can be trusted to act with prudence and discretion, and at the same time to uphold the honor of this, the greatest nation of the world.

New York Mail and Express: William McKinley, as president, has not only fulfilled the highest expectations of his party and of those allies who joined with the Republican party in the crisis of 1896, but he has risen above those expectations, and in these hours of stress and danger he stands revealed to all the people as a statesman and patriot in whose wisdom, tact and judgment a nation reposes its entire confidence.

Toledo Blade: William McKinley has completed his first year of office. He has executed his trust as the nation's chief executive with conspicuous ability, and has the moral support of the great mass of patriotic American citizens, without regard to party. Under his administration, the country has enjoyed its most prosperous year since 1892, and enters upon the second with every prospect of an increase in prosperity in all the great lines of human activity.

New York Press: President McKinley's severest labors are, doubtless, before him. In foreign and domestic affairs this first year has been but a preparation for the consummation of policies of the most pregnant import. But he approaches them from a plane of popular content in confidence immeasurably elevated above that universal anxious seat of a year ago. The atmosphere of achievement has been created. From the day of the calling of the extra session which restored to industrial America its own he has been the most potent personal influence in the beneficial alteration of conditions which today is acknowledged by all.

Sioux City Journal: The signal success of the first year's administration is the enactment of a revenue which fulfills the promises of its friends, and while supplying revenue for the government discriminates in favor of American enterprise and labor. The promptness and efficiency in this regard is an earnest that the party's pledges will be redeemed as fast as possible. Everything cannot be done in a year. In the emergency which the government at Washington is now facing the administration has received the most complimentary assurances, from all parties, of the country's trust in it.

What They Say of McKinley.

Grand Rapids Herald: When President McKinley assumed the reins of office he was pledged to four things—sound money, protection, the annexation of Hawaii and the liberation of Cuba. The first he has maintained, the second was given to the country in a little less than four months after his inauguration, the third he has bent his every endeavor to accomplish and except for the fact it takes a two-thirds majority of congress to pass a resolution of annexation, Hawaii would have been annexed before the holidays. The fourth is now a matter of keenest interest and ere another year will have been numbered with the past, Cuba will have gained her liberty and the stirring incidents of today will be history. In no thing has the president been recreant to his trust.

Detroit Free Press (Dem.): All things considered, President McKinley merits the felicitations of his countrymen upon the rounding out of the first year of his administration. Beyond a doubt the nation thinks better of him at the completion of the first quarter of his career as chief executive today than when he entered the white house a year ago. If when he was inaugurated he was unpossessed of the staunch fiber, the rugged traits and marked virility that seem essential to a successful president, he certainly has grown up to the requirements of the great office to an appreciable degree. We may say that it is exceptional for a new president to retain in such full measure the loyalty of his partisans and compel the respect of those who had doubted him as Mr. McKinley has done up to this time.

Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune: But 12 months have passed since a Republican president and house of representatives entered upon the duties of office. Yet in that brief time, and in spite of a hostile senate, the president's unalterable stand in favor of sound money and the gold standard has restored perfect confidence to the business world. A Republican tariff law has been put in operation and is producing a surplus, a treaty providing for the annexation of Hawaii is now before the senate and will soon reach a vote, while a fleet of American battleships, with steam up, lies waiting for that swift-approaching day when a Republican president shall say, "Cuba must be free." Such is the record of one year. It has been a year of deeds and of action. It is a typical year of Republicanism, and its record is one of triumph.

Brooklyn Eagle (Ind Dem.): The year between March 4, 1897, and March 4, 1898, reveals William McKinley as a patriotic American, a cautious but firm executive, a conciliatory but self respecting politician in his relations with congress, a pronounced but unfactional Republican in his relations with his party, a consistent protectionist in his economic convictions, a courageous friend of civil service reform and of currency reform and an official who, knowing war as a soldier and loving peace as a citizen, cultivates the things which make for peace in the spirit and attitude of our government, while not unmindful of that duty of readiness for war which emergencies, neither of our creation nor of our choosing, have forced upon the national attention. The president is quite as large a man as his eulogists have maintained. He is a far better man than his opponents represent. He is a much abler man than mugwump criticism, with the intolerance of half estimate and the purblindness of half lights, can conceive any one to be but themselves.

The Montgomery Canard.

The rumor Saturday, which excited so many people, to the effect that the battleship Montgomery now in Havana harbor, had been blow up as the Maine was, should have found no believers. It was undoubtedly started by some heartless brute for the purpose of affecting prices for the moment. Under present conditions there is no danger of any Spaniard with authority enough or money enough to secure the material necessary to blow up a battleship attempting such a thing though the warship might be standing in a public park in Havana. The danger to Spain which is pending on account of the Maine disaster has brought alarm to the Spanish blowhards and no class of people would do more than the official class of Spaniards to restore the Maine and the lives of those who perished, if it was possible to do either or both. Those Spaniards who did the bloody work never anticipated that it would bring calamity upon Spain. They have learned better and fully appreciate the mistake they made even though the game has not yet been played out. There is no danger of harm coming to the Montgomery through Spanish agency.

VANDALISM

DEED OF UNKNOWN BOYS

Dwelling Bombarded with Stale Eggs —No Known Cause for Reprehensible Act — Arrests to Follow.

From the Daily of Wednesday.

About 7.30 last night three half grown boys amused themselves rotten egging a house in the 900 block on East Eldorado street, owned by Mrs. H. C. Conklin.

J. F. Mercer, a Wabash engineer, running between this city and Quincy, occupies the house, having moved here recently from Springfield. Mr. Mercer was on his engine at the time the outrage was committed. The boys probably knew this and that his wife and daughter were in the house alone. Mrs. Mercer heard a noise at the front door and supposing it to be the screen slamming sent her daughter out to fasten it shut. She did not know what had happened until this morning when some one saw the marks of the eggs on the front door and several others passing stopped to see what it was.

Being strangers in the city, having arrived only a few days ago, Mr. and Mrs. Mercer were naturally very indignant over the matter and will see that the boys who threw the missiles are properly dealt with. The boys live in the immediate neighborhood and their names are known. One of them came way across the street as soon as the people living in the house found out what had happened and said, "I did not do it."

The affair is causing much comment in the neighborhood in which it occurred and the general sentiment is that it was a great injustice to the occupants of the house, who seem to be very estimable people.

Washington, March 16.—"There is nothing new in the Spanish duel," said Senator Mason, "beyond the fact that I have received the paper which contained the silly stuff. As I said when the matter was cabled to this country, it is not worthy of notice, even as a joke. The Spanish press is filled constantly with cartoons and insulting paragraphs about American senators. We have more serious things on hand than the insults of Spanish newspapers. If the cause of Cuba were not at stake they would be wholly unimportant, and this public challenge to a duel is not worth laughing at just now. I might offer to fight with six-inch rifled cannon, but Uncle Sam will do the fighting, if it becomes necessary, to free Cuba."

JOE MAUZY ON TRIAL

Attorneys Trying to Secure a Jury to Hear the Evidence.

M'KINLEY MURDER CASE IN COURT

Judge Vail Presides--Jurymen Examined as to Their Qualifications to Pass on the Testimony--Many are Called but Few are Chosen--Trial Likely to be Prolonged.

From the Daily of Tuesday.

What will promotly be the greatest and most interesting murder case ever tried in Macon county began this morning in the circuit court before Judge Vail. It was the case of Joseph Mauzy, son of ex-Sheriff John H. Mauzy, charged with the murder of Mat McKinley on July 5, 1895.

The case was called at 9 o'clock this morning. There was quite a large number of spectators in the court room, but not as many as might have been expected. Many of the attorneys were present, however, at the opening of the case. The attorneys in the case, Hush Cree and C. C. Leforgee for the prosecution, and W. C. Johns and I. A. Buckingham for the defense, are now trying to secure a jury, a work which will probably last for the rest of the week. The examination of the jurymen was not particularly interesting to the spectators and at about 10 o'clock they began to leave the court room a few at a time.

The special venire of 100 men which was drawn, reported for duty this morning and when these are exhausted another 100 will be drawn. During the forenoon about 25 were examined and out of these probably not more than two will act on the jury.

The prisoner was given a seat on the west side of the court room near the judge. He was accompanied by his attorneys, Messrs. Johns and Houseum and Mr. Buckingham, and also Deputy Sheriff Sam Stobler. John Mauzy, the father of the accused, was also in the court room and listened attentively to all that took place.

Mauzy himself sat very quietly and seemed to be a little bored while the attorneys were examining the jurymen. He frowned rather severely when the lawyers talked of capital punishment and smiled once or twice when amusing incidents occurred.

The case will be continued through the afternoon and will be taken up again tomorrow morning. As soon as the jury is secured it is likely that the court room will be crowded every day.

Opening of the Case.

The case opened when Attorney Leforgee for the prosecution made a statement to the jury as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Jury: This case is an indictment returned by the grand jury of this term of court against Joseph Mauzy, charging him with the murder of Mat McKinley on July 5 1895. Mr Mauzy is the gentleman sitting at the west end of the table and is now, I believe, a resident of Oakland, Illinois."

Mr. Leforgee then began the examination of the first man called to qualify as a juror, Gus A. Ahrens. The following were the questions asked Mr. Ahrens and are similar to the questions asked most of the jurors examined: "Do you know anything about this case?" "When the crime was committed did you read the newspaper accounts?" "Did you believe what you read?" "Did you read the various newspaper accounts which have been published since then?" "Did you believe what you read?" "From what you read did you form any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of Joe Mauzy?" "Have you that opinion now?" "Is it so fixed in your mind that you could not enter into this case impartially as a juror?"

Mr. Ahrens, who was being examined, answered these questions in such a manner that Mr. Leforgee challenged him. Judge Vail then took up the examination. He asked Mr. Ahrens if he had talked to witnesses in the case or if his opinions were based simply on newspaper accounts and if his opinions were fixed so that they could not be removed. Mr. Ahrens said that was his case and Judge Vail said, "For old friendship sake I will excuse you." The judge added: "I will say to you jurors who are excused to please pass out the court room and go to the circuit clerk's office and get your pay for not knowing anything."

OTHERS EXAMINED.

Attorney Leforgee then continued with the examination of others called. The set of questions asked Mr. Ahrens were put to all of the other jurors. In the cases where the questions were answered in a manner that did not warrant the juror being challenged the attorney asked the juror in which newspaper he had read of the case, whether he was acquainted with any of the attorneys and whether he had ever employed any of them or had been connected with them in any case, whether or not he had any connection with the accused, where he lived, how long he had lived in the county and where he lived formerly, and whether or not he would be willing to inflict the death penalty.

Mr Leforgee examined the jurors who after being sworn testified as follows.

J A Bricker—Had talked about the case and had formed opinions which were fixed in his mind. Challenged and excused.

W. P. Brown—Had read and talked about the murder and had formed opinion. Challenged and excused.

William Cotter—Read about the case and had formed an opinion as to Mauzy's guilt. Excused.

William Bolz—Had talked some about the case, but did not know anything about it had never read anything about the case; didn't know Mauzy or McKinley, and in fact didn't know anything about the case at all. Mr. Bolz is a German and said that he could not thoroughly understand English, and wanted to be excused on that account. Mr. Leforgee in continuing the examination asked the juror if he would be willing to inflict the death penalty, and the juror said that he thought he would have a feeling against doing so. The juror was not challenged.

W. Culp—Read about the case and had formed and expressed opinions, which were fixed in his mind. Challenged.

George Dillon—Had formed opinions which required evidence to remove. Excused.

William Dick—Was examined and excused because he had read and talked of the case and had opinions.

O. M. Barnett—Read of the case in the newspapers and had formed opinions. Excused.

Fred Creekmon—Had discussed the case and read it. Didn't know whether the newspaper accounts were true or not. Had not thought much of the case since he was summoned as a juror. He was acquainted with some of the lawyers, had never before acted as a juror in a criminal case and had scruples against inflicting the death penalty. He was not challenged.

Edward Bower—Had formed opinions in regard to the case, which would require considerable evidence to remove. Excused.

Samuel Bell—Read of the case in the newspapers and formed opinion based on what he read in the newspapers and what he believed to be true. Excused.

J. Hoit Birt—Works for elevator firm in Wheatland township. Read accounts in the newspaper, but didn't form any opinion. Read newspaper accounts carefully since then and had formed opinion as to Mauzy's guilt or innocence, and had expressed it. Never acted as juror in criminal case. Had formed fixed opinion. Excused.

Robert Walt—Heard some talk about the case and had heard others talk about it. Didn't know any of the facts of the case. Hadn't read anything about it in the newspapers and could read but very little. Excused.

J. F. Nichols—Had expressed opinion based on what he believed to be true and which he read in the newspapers. Excused.

C. E. Akers—Formed a fixed opinion which would require evidence to remove. Excused.

W. M. Brown—Said he was 63 years old and was excused.

William Holly—Resided near Wykles for the past 30 years. Had read accounts of the case in the newspapers. Thought he could try the case impartially if he was selected as a juror. Knew Mr. Johns and acted as juror in case in which Mr. Johns was connected. Mr. Holly said when asked by Mr. Leforgee how he was connected with Mr Johns' case said that he was on the jury in the murder trial of John Creekmur. Mr. Leforgee said that he thought he remembered something of that case himself and called attention to the fact that all of the attorneys in the present case were connected with the Creekmur trial. Mr. Holly was not challenged.

Charles Bailey—Excused on account of having formed an opinion as to Mauzy's guilt or innocence.

Samuel Bair—Farmer, living west of the city. Had not formed any opinion in regard to the case and thought that he could try the case impartially.

William Bolz was again taken up and stating that he could not read English without difficulty and could not understand all that might be said to him in English. He was excused.

William Holly was re-examined and said that he had formed an opinion lately, and that evidence would be required to remove the opinion. Challenged and excused.

Arthur Allen—Hadn't formed any opinion in regard to the case. Was not challenged.

J. W. Christy—Had read accounts of the case in newspapers but had not formed nor expressed any opinion.

John Barrun—Had formed opinion which would require considerable evidence to remove. Excused.

C. F. Albert—Said he was a former. Had read all about the case that was published in the newspapers and had talked some in regard to the case, but did not think he had formed any opinion. Knew Mr. Johns and Mr Buckingham, but never employed either of them as his attorney. Also knew John Mauzy, but was not intimate with him. Had never been connected with a criminal case.

TENDERED FOUR.

Attorney Leforgee announced that he would tender the four jurors not excused. They were Fred Creekman, Arthur Allen, J. W. Christy and G. F. Albers.

Attorney I. A. Buckingham examined the jurors for the defense. He first examined Fred Creekman. The juror said that he read of the murder at the time it occurred. Mr. Buckingham asked if he formed any opinion as to whether or not Jack Faunce was guilty. Mr. Leforgee objected and the objection was sustained. The juror said he didn't form any opinion one way or the other, as to the truth of the statements in the newspapers. He said he knew Mr. Mills and that he was his attorney. The juror insisted that he could not come to any decision in regard to case by only hearing one side of it in the newspapers. Mr. Buckingham suggested that the grand jury only heard one side of a case and asked if the juror had ever been on a grand jury and he said he had. Mr. Buckingham asked how it was that he managed to return indictments when he only heard one side. Mr. Leforgee objected and Mr. Buckingham said he would challenge for cause. Judge Vail asked what the cause was and the attorney said it was because the juror had expressed himself as being against capital punishment. The judge excused the juror.

Arthur Allen, another of the jurors accepted by the prosecution was next examined. He said he heard about the murder the morning after it occurred in 1880 and then heard nothing more about it until it was brought up, when efforts were being made to pardon Faunce. He said he read the articles in regard to the Faunce matter and from them did not form any opinion as to who was guilty of killing McKinley. He said he could enter upon the trial perfectly impartially and would have no feeling or prejudice against Mauzy; did not know Faunce.

J. W. Christy was next taken up. He said he was never connected with a criminal suit, but had served once on a grand jury. Read all about the murder when it occurred. Had heard some persons talk about the case.

At noon court was adjourned until 1:30 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Resumption of the Task of Selecting a Trial Jury.

Two of the jurors were accepted by both sides. They were G. F. Albert of Decatur and Arthur Allen of Hickory Point. Another juror, G. Collins of Decatur, was accepted by the defense.

When the afternoon session opened Mr. Buckingham took up the examination of J. W. Christy. The latter said that he did not think he could try the case impartially. He was excused.

J. B. Beckett was examined by Mr. Buckingham. He said he had formed an opinion which would prevent him from trying the case impartially. Excused.

John Brewster—Read of the case and formed an opinion. Excused.

Martin Shields said he was 64 years old and was excused.

S. L. Peake said he did not know McKinley, but knew John Mauzy. Has formed an opinion as to who was guilty of the killing of McKinley. Excused.

W. O Dimock—Read accounts of the murder and of the trial of Faunce and heard a good deal of talk about the case. Had expressed an opinion in regard to the case. Challenged and excused.

Charles Boyer—Clerk in grocery store. Formed an opinion and still have same opinion in regard to case. Excused.

G. W. Portwood—Works in Wabash car shops and lived here four years. Read about the murder when it happened and read accounts of the case recently. Never heard much talk about the case excepting around the shops. He had no feelings against Mauzy and could enter in the trial with mind perfectly free and impartial.

Mr. Buckingham next took up the examination of G. F. Albers, who was accepted by the prosecution. He said he would be willing to acquit the accused unless he was proved guilty beyond a doubt. Would also be willing to acquit on a defense of an alibi. The other jurors who have been examined by Mr Buckingham were asked the same thing in regard to the alibi.

L. C. Ruddock was next examined. He said he had read accounts of the case in two newspapers and had read about all that had been printed. Had formed an opinion. Challenged.

Frank B. Blume was excused and G. Collins of Decatur was accepted by the defense.

From the Daily of Wednesday

The lawyers in the Mauzy case this morning had better luck getting jurymen than they did yesterday. At noon four jurymen in all had been secured. They are as follows:

George F. Albert, Illini township.

Frank Craycroft, Wheatland township.

Thomas Bankson, Blue Mound township.

Albert Buckman, Decatur.

A good many men were examined today by the lawyers. The work is slow as there are many who are examined and then excused. The securing of the jury is not very interesting to the spectators and there were not very many in the court room this morning. It is not likely that a jury will be secured before Saturday evening.

A special venire of another 100 men has been drawn and will soon be used as the first hundred will probably be exhausted by night.

Morning Session

The morning session of court began at 9 o'clock. The lawyers proceeded at once to examine the jurors. There were not many spectators in the court room and the examination of the jurors went slowly and was tiresome to those who were listening. Mr. Buckingham examined the following:

P. J. Lowe—Carpenter, lived in the city for a long time; was in the city the night of the shooting and talked with several persons about it; had no objections to the defense of an alibi and would be willing to give the benefit of such a defense.

John Cloud—Said he thought he would be able to try the case impartially. After a long examination Mr. Buckingham asked the juror if he was opposed to capital punishment and he said he was. He was challenged for cause.

Albert Barber—Had formed an opinion as to the case. Challenged for cause.

Frank Craycroft—Did not know Jack Faunce; had no feeling whatever against Mauzy, and would be able to give him an impartial trial; had no objection to the defense of an alibi.

Mr. Buckingham then tendered four men to the other side.

Mr. Leforgee began the examination with Craycroft. The juror did not know either of the lawyers for the defense.

P. J. Lowe was examined. He had read and talked of the case. Past 60 years of age. Challenged for cause.

Thomas Bankston—Had not formed any opinion on the case and had not expressed any.

William Andrews—Read about the case but didn't remember anything about it. Is 24 years old. If I was selected as a juror and believed that the accused was guilty would have no scruples against the infliction of the death penalty. Challenged peremptorily.

Guy Parker had formed an opinion. Challenged for cause.

Fred Cooper—Had no fixed opinion in regard to the case and was not acquainted with the lawyers. When examined by Mr. Buckingham he was challenged for cause and excused.

Charles Freeman—Had read of the case and talked about it and had expressed an opinion as to who he thought was guilty; could try the case impartially.

Mr. Buckingham accepted Charles Freeman and the examination was taken up by Mr. Leforgee. Freeman said he had read about the case, formed an opinion and expressed it; challenged for cause.

F. M. Abrams—Read accounts of the case in the newspapers, and had formed an opinion. Challenged for cause.

Mr. Combs—Had read a good deal in the newspapers about the case and had formed an opinion. Challenged for cause.

Albert Buckman—Did not read much in the newspaper about case. Heard some talk about the case, but did not know anything about the murder. Did not know Mauzy or his father. Been employed at the coal mine, but is a musician by profession. Would not have any scruples against infliction of the death penalty.

Mr. Leforgee accepted the man and Mr. Buckingham examined him for a long time and also accepted him.

Attorney Johns for the defense then continued the examination of the following:

Ben Howenstine—Had an opinion and expressed it. Challenged for cause.

Harvey Albright—Was not very familiar with the case and could enter into it as a juror impartially.

W. T. Beadles—Read in the newspapers about the case, but did not form any opinion. Mr. Johns said that Mr. Beadles was the husband of his second cousin and he was excused by agreement.

William Martin—Had read of the case and formed and expressed an opinion. Challenged for cause.

E. J. Strader—Formed and expressed an opinion. Challenged for cause.

Spencer Huff—Talked about the case and expressed an opinion. Challenged for cause.

Jacob Keck—Expressed an opinion and talked of the case. Challenged for cause.

Hue Singleton—Was a member of the grand jury which indicted Faunce, had an opinion at that time; read of the case in all the papers; has no opinion of the case now.

When the noon hour was reached court was adjourned until 1:30 o'clock.

Afternoon Session.

This afternoon Mr Johns continued his examination of Hue Singleton. After examining him for some time Judge Vail said that he himself would excuse Singleton as he had served on the grand jury when Faunce was indicted and he was therefore, di-qualified to act on the jury.

George Claypool—Could not read or write and was challenged for cause.

John Oren—Had an opinion which would require evidence to remove. Challenged for cause.

Thomas Millier—Lived here for nine years. Read of the killing of McKinley in the newspapers. Formed and expressed opinion. Challenged for cause.

Asa Clothier—Was in the city the night of the murder, but left the next day, and did not read about it. Have no opinion as to the guilt or innocence of Mauzy; never was on a jury before and never was connected with a criminal case of any kind. If chosen as a juryman would give Mauzy the benefit of any doubt. Not acquainted with the lawyers. No reason why he should not try the case impartially.

Ed Hill—Have an opinion in regard to the case. Challenged for cause.

George Kraft—Have a fixed opinion. Challenged for cause.

James Dayton—Hold an opinion as to who killed McKinley. Challenged for cause.

John Seeforth, P. B. Vace, J. B. Myers and J. W. Myers were excused because of their opinion.

Harry Shlaudeman—Read the newspaper accounts of the case and formed no opinions. Now has opinion as to Mauzy such as would require evidence to remove. Challenged for cause by Mr. Johns.

Judge Vail then examined Mr. Shlaudeman. He asked several questions and then Mr. Shlaudeman said that he didn't know whether he could act as a juror impartially or not.

Charles Martin—Heard about the murder when it occurred, was attending school at the time. Read nothing about the case until the past few months, when the pardoning of Faunce was brought up. Formed a slight opinion after having Revival of the Slave Block.

Glasgow, Ky., March 16.—Two negroes will be sold into slavery at the courthouse door next Monday, the first since 1865. The negroes are James Wade, a mulatto, and Rufus Howard, who is as black as the ace of spades. They are sound and able bodied, but are lazy and having been repeatedly convicted of vagrancy, the county is not willing to be further bothered with them and has advertised their services for sale for the time of their conviction. The purchaser must house and clothe them and in return can use their services in any manner he sees fit. If they escape they may be arrested and returned to him.

Blood Poisoned.

FEARFUL RESULT OF IMPROPERLY TREATING AN ABSCESS.

Mrs. L. E. Browning, of Pueblo, Painfully Afflicted from a Complication of Diseases—Her Remarkable Fortitude.

From the Chieftain, Pueblo, Col.

The hurry and bustle of the housewife is extremely wearing upon the delicate organism of womanhood. Her intense earnestness in whatever she undertakes, tempts her constantly to go beyond her strength.

Read the story of a Colorado woman as told to our reporter: "Eight years ago," said she, "my husband died, and I was left with three children to care for and educate. About two years ago I was very sick with blood poisoning, caused by an abscess that had not received proper treatment. The disease for a time settled in my throat, causing me intense agony. Then inflammatory rheumatism set in. For four months and a half I was a prisoner in my room, most of the time confined to my bed. My hands were swollen so that I could not feed myself, and the swelling in my feet and ankles would have made walking impossible if I had been strong enough.

"One day, after considerable treatment, my physician brought me a box of pills.

"'You need a tonic,' he said, 'and something that will act at once, and this is the best medicine I know of for that purpose.'

"'Pills,' I exclaimed in surprise as he opened the box and showed me the little pink globes. 'These are Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.'

"'Yes,' he replied, 'but you need not be alarmed, they are not physic, and my word for it, they'll do you good.'

"Before I had been taking them a week I noticed a great improvement in my condition. Soon my rheumatism was gone, I grew stronger each day and now am in the best of health.

"I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," she continued, "the best tonic I have ever known."

"A friend not long ago was telling me of her mother who is at a critical period in her life. She had been subject to terrible fainting spells, and the whole family would work over her. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not only stopped the fainting spells, but given her so much strength that she is able to take up life's duties again.

"I recommended the pills also to a young lady whose pale face made one pity her. She looked as if there wasn't a drop of blood in her body. She was so weak that she was not able to attend school, but after taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for awhile she has gone back to school, and, with her rosy cheeks and bright eyes, she looks like another girl.

(Signed) "MRS. L. E. BROWNING."

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 19th day of May, A. D., 1897.

Wheat in Chicago.

Chicago, March 12.—Leiter's brokers, Allen, Grier & Co., made application to the directors of the Board of Trade to fix the marginal price for May wheat, claiming that the opposition is demanding extortionate margins on purchases of that future by the Leiter brokers. The biggest sale of cash wheat yet made by the Leiter combination was effected today when 2,000,000 bushels were transferred to Counselman & Day. The price was not given.

RAMSAY BANK

Chicago Bondsmen Win in the Appellate Court.

CARLYLE PEOPLE OUT OF CASH

Loss of $150,000 to the Depositors—End of the Long Litigation Growing Out of a Failure.

Carlyle, Ill., March 11.—The last thread which connects the creditors of the Ramsay bank with their lost thousands of dollars has probably been broken. A decision was rendered in the appellate court at Mount Vernon yesterday afternoon which virtually knocks them out in their legal battle with the ten Chicago bondsmen of the late state treasurer of Illinois.

M. P. Murray received a telegram last night stating that the Wildbeck case had been reversed and remanded. This means that the controversy in court will undoubtedly cease, as the people who lost money in the bank have grown tired of the two years of litigation.

One hundred residents of Carlyle and vicinity are out in the neighborhood of $150,000, which is a clean cash loss. Widows, orphans and common day laborers suffered with the wealthier class.

Rufus N. Ramsay, banker and statesman of Carlyle, was elected state treasurer in 1893. His bank was a depository for scores of citizens of Carlyle, for every one had confidence in his financial stability.

Ramsay died on the night of November 11, 1894. No anxiety was felt by depositors for the safety of their money until action was filed in the probate court here by the Chicago bondsmen against the Ramsay estate for $363,000, which represented the deficiency in the state cash box. The claim was placed in a class which gave it preference over those of the real creditors.

The home people appealed to the circuit court, and there Judge Wall held that the claim of the Chicago men was invalid.

They appealed the case to the appellate court at Mount Vernon, and there Judge Wall's decision was reversed and the case remanded.

The depositors petitioned for a rehearing, which was granted, and for the second time the case was reversed and remanded. This opinion will practically settle the fight, as the creditors have often expressed themselves during the last year to the effect that they have grown tired of the litigation. The case may be taken to the supreme court, but such action is more than doubtful.

The names of the Chicago men who have cause to be jubilant over the appellate court decision are John H. Witbeck and John A. King of the Fort Dearborn National Bank; John R. Walsh and Andrew J. McNally of the Chicago National; Elbridge G. Keith of the Metropolitan National; E. A. Hamill and Charles L. Hutchinson of the Commercial Exchange Bank, and E. S. Dreyer.

BRUCE IS SICK

Dangerous Illness of a Noted Negro Leader.

HE MAY NOT RECOVER

Important Decision by Secretary Bliss in the Famous Iowa Land Case—Traverse is Victor.

Washington, March 12.—Blanche K. Bruce, register of the treasury and ex-senator from Mississippi, one of the leaders of the negro race, is seriously ill. It is feared he may not survive.

Land Decision.

Washington, March 13.—Secretary Bliss has rendered a decision of considerable interest in the case of Olesen vs. Traverse, from the Des Moines, Iowa, land office. The land in controversy was originally within a grant to the railroad company, which subsequently forfeited its charter. Olesen contracted to buy from the railroad, and when the latter lost its land he claimed the right of purchase under the law of 1887. After the forfeiture and when the land was opened to settlement Traverse made a homestead entry. The secretary decides the case in his favor—that he be permitted to perfect his claim.

UNCLE SAM TO BUILD SHIPS.

Going Right On Preparing to Win in a Fight.

Washington, March 12.—The United States is to build at once three new battle ships. The house committee on naval affairs decided upon the plan yesterday afternoon, and may report the measure to the house on Monday.

Besides this, there is reason to believe that the administration will get the two war vessels building in England for the Brazilian government; and that it has options on several other craft under construction has been officially admitted.

While these developments might create the belief that hostilities impend, the officials still profess confidence that there is to be a peaceful outcome of the present difficulties. Meanwhile they are simply preparing with serenity to meet their duty if events should shape themselves otherwise.

Out of Business.

Charles Gross, late manager of the Hotel Brunswick, will retire from business. He has stored all of his furniture, and will not take charge of the Dougherty hotel as incorrectly stated. He is at present undecided as to what he will do in a business way.

Traded His Property.

G. W. Potts has traded his property on Prairie avenue for the property known as the William Hooper farm, a place of 200 acres, five miles southeast of Decatur.

For His Health.

C. I. Keagg, who lately moved from Harristown to Decatur, left this morning for Tennessee, where he will remain for some time, hoping the climate may prove of benefit to his health.

A Flag of Warning.

Beware of the dry, tickling, hacking, morning cough, for it warns you that consumption lurks near. The famous Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure it. "I had a very bad cough. One doctor pronounced it consumption. I used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and was completely cured; the cough left me and has never come back. Simon Smasal, 375 31st Street, Chicago, Ills." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup costs but 25 cents. Ask for Bull's, take only Bull's.

THE HOTEL BRUNSWICK.

Leased by John H. Boone, Lately in Business at Tolono.

From the Daily of Friday.

John H. Boone, an experienced hotel man of Tolono, has leased the New Brunswick hotel for a term of five years, and will formally take possession tomorrow. The lease of Charles Gross expired today and Mr. Gross is busily engaged in removing his furniture to the Dougherty building on East Eldorado street, where he will conduct a boarding house.

Mr. Boone has had years of experience in the conducting of a hotel and has made a success of his hotel at Tolono. He not only has experience, but means and will refurnish the New Brunswick throughout. The building will be entirely remodeled. There will be new floors laid, steam heat and electric bells in each room and the building repainted and redecorated both inside and out. No expense will be spared by the owners of the building and by Mr. Boone to make the hotel first class in every particular and all modern improvements will be added to the service. The hotel will not be opened for business for three weeks at least and during this time will be entirely in the hands of the decorators, carpenters, plumbers and painters.

SPANISH VENOM AGAIN.

The "Imparcial" Editor Comes Out with Lurid Remarks.

Madrid, March 12.—The Imparcial says: "There is still time to prepare for new men-of-war and perhaps it will be possible to fly a few vessels abroad. But in any case, we have some merchant ships which could do a lot of harm to American commerce and we still have time to arrange to carry on privateering war from which as much renown may accrue as from the guerilla warfare which vanquished Napoleon. If our flag goes into mourning let us at least be able to put some pieces of crape on America's obnoxious flag."

Election Excitement in Spain.

Madrid, March 12.—Placards are posted throughout the city setting forth that the National candidates whom all good Spaniards should support are Generals Borrero and Sigueros. The placards end with "Long live the fatherland, long live the army." These candidates were nominated by the [Weylerite] Republicans and the Carlist newspapers announce that they will support them.

Denial.

London, March 13.—Officials of the United States embassy say it is absolutely untrue that they have been informed that Spain has raised $60,000,000 for the purchase of warships and deposited the amount in the London bank.

TELEGRAPH BREVITIES.

ARTIFICIAL TREE INDUSTRY.

Factory-Made Palms of Life-Like Formation Are Now Numerous.

This is the age of things artificial. A palm manufactory has recently opened a salesroom on upper Broadway, and a huge sign lower down on the same thoroughfare notifies the mob that another store of the same sort will soon be ready for business. The artificial tree industry is comparatively new and it must be profitable. All over town one sees counterfeits. Many of the large stores, and most of the more prominent hotels of this city, including some of those that are most tasteful in their decorations, now have huge palm trees in their halls or entrances, and even in private houses it is not uncommon to find plants with removable leaves.

The prepared palms, such as are used to-day, are infinitely more real in appearance than the old artificial plants of a few years ago. Many are so close in their resemblance to the live plant that it is hard to detect them as imitations without close scrutiny. The leaves are real leaves, and not constructed out of enamel tin, like the old kind, and the fiber on the trunk is real fiber. It is only on approaching them and examining them that the leaves are seen to be painted and the stalks inserted into, but not growing out of, the stem. The price of the manufactured article varies from 50 cents to $25 for the ordinary specimens, but some of the larger and finer ones amount to $50, or even $100. A small fern palm sprig of some 15 inches high is sold at half a dollar; a tree, such as those that are seen in the halls of hotels, measuring, say, nine feet high, and with about 18 removable leaves, will cost $17. The sago palm is a more expensive variety, a tree of five feet selling for as much as $20. We may rail against humbug to our hearts' content, but, somehow or other, the laugh is seldom on the fellow who fools us.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

QUEEN OF THE GYPSIES.

To Be Crowned in a Woodland Near Topeka, Kan.

New Sovereign of the Romany Band Is a Bright, Black-Eyed Girl of Twenty—The Coronation Ceremonies.

The Romany band of Gypsies will crown a new queen in Topeka, Kan., on the 22d of next May. It will be a most unusual event for the United States, and members of the band from every state in the union and from foreign countries as well will be present at the coronation. One thousand gypsies are expected by the date of the ceremony.

The young queen will reach her twentieth year on May 22, and as a law of the tribe prescribes that a sovereign must not be crowned before attaining that age the coronation will not take place before that date. She is known as Molly Stanley, or, more properly, Molly Stackovitch, and her mother, the old queen, was Sofia Fryer, and for more than 40 years reigned as head of the Romany tribe in Austria. She died several days ago, and as the band of which the young queen is a member was on its way to Topeka when word of her death was received, it was decided to camp there until spring and hold the coronation ceremonies in that city. Accordingly word was sent out to the different bands of the tribe throughout the United States, and already several hundred gypsies have started on the overland trip to Topeka to be present at the crowning of their queen.

The crown that was placed on the head of "Queen Sofia" over 40 years ago is now on its way to Kansas to be placed on the head of her only daughter. It is a massive crown of gold, studded with huge Bohemian garnets of great worth, and has been in the Romany tribe for hundreds of years. Father Belah Metrovitch, of Chicago, the only Romany priest in the United States, will perform the coronation ceremony, and Miss Minnie Youngs, also of Chicago, a cousin of the young queen, will have the honor of placing the crown on the head of the sovereign. The coronation will take place in some woodland near the city, and for a week afterward festivities will continue in honor of the event. There will be plenty to eat and plenty of Romany wine to drink, and day and night the woods will ring with the weird music and songs of the gypsy race. It will be the greatest week in the history of the Romany tribe—a tribe that dates its lineage back to the time of the Pharaohs, and is unquestionably the oldest gypsy tribe in the world—since its first representatives landed in this country.

"Queen Molly," as she is now called, has been in this country but eight months, and is unable to speak a word of English. Her husband, Gustav Stanley or Stackovitch, to whom she was married in Belvidere, Ill., five months ago, acts as her interpreter, and as he received considerable education in American schools, coming here from Australia when a small boy, he performs his part well. The royal household consists of the young queen and her husband, his brother, Louis Stanley, and his wife and little boy, and is at present camped in a primeval sort of a palace, consisting of three red and white tents, joined end to end. There is just now but little picturesqueness to the surroundings of the Gypsy queen, but this will come later when the band moves into the heart of some woodland and prepares for the coronation of the sovereign in the midst of spring.

Queen Molly is shy in the presence of strangers, and while holding an audience sits oriental fashion on the carpet of her tent with her eyes downcast, not unlike the manner of a bashful American schoolgirl. Her skin is of a dark olive tint, and her face is lit by a pair of bright black eyes that sparkle in conversation. Her hair is jet black and worn on top of her head, with bangs over her forehead.

A distinct scar on the left cheek somewhat mars the appearance of the young sovereign. It is the result of a burn received while playing as a child about a camp fire in her far away native land. While not pretty, the young queen-elect is a good type of the Gypsy race.

Queen Molly is as fond of bright colors as the humblest of her tribe, and in her dress red is her favorite color. Rugs of varied hues ornament the interior of the tents, and the coverlets and pillow shams of the royal bed are almost barbaric in the brightness of their colors. When the young queen leaves her tent she invariably wears a bright-colored handkerchief on her head, and when she makes a trip of any distance always rides a small, piebald pony which she brought with her to this country.

The old queen was very indulgent with her only daughter, and allowed her to travel through the different countries that the Romany tribe inhabits. Consequently, the young sovereign has mastered several languages, among them German, French and Spanish.

New Minister's Effort Will be to Avoid War.

All Appears to be Quiet at Washington, but Military Activity is Not Lessened—The News in Brief.

Washington, March 12.—Polo y Bernabe, the new Spanish minister, was formally presented to President McKinley this morning. The introduction to the president was by Secretary Sherman. The exchange of greetings was most cordial. The ceremony, such as is usual on such occasions, passed off without incident.

The minister on being presented said the principal object of his mission was to "endeavor as far as possible to maintain and draw closer between the two countries the most friendly relations," adding that he was ready to omit no effort on his part to that end, and hoped to secure the president's effective co-operation thereto. He closed with a wish for the happiness and prosperity of the people of the United States. The president in reply, after expressing pleasure at receiving the letters accrediting Bernabe to the United States as minister, said: "It is very gratifying to me to receive the assurances you have just made of your purpose to endeavor to maintain and draw closer in all possible ways the most friendly relations between the two countries, and in response I assure you that my own efforts and those of this government will no less earnestly be directed towards the same high end." He closed with a wish for the peace and prosperity of Spain and the Spanish people.

WILL BE NO WAR.

That Is What Auditor Morris Said at Cleveland Today.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 16.—Frank H. Morris, fourth auditor of the treasury, a personal friend of President McKinley, at present in Cleveland, speaking of the Cuban question said: "There will be no war. I find that reports have been greatly exaggerated all over the country. War preparations are just what the country has needed for 30 years. Many of our ports have been almost entirely defenseless, but this is being remedied in a rapid manner now. In a short time we will be comfortably fortified against invasion. Whatever the agency was the officials at Washington are positive that the Spanish government had nothing at all to do with blowing up the Maine. The president, when the time arrives, will demand indemnity, and it will be paid. There will be no war."

CHICAGO FIRE

Wild Panic in the Leading Streets of the City.

OUT OF WINDOWS

Many People Jump to Their Death and Injury.

National Music Company Building in Flames—Elevated Car Service Interrupted — Names of the Dead.

Chicago, March 16.—A number of people were forced to jump from windows by a fire which started in the building of the National Music company, Wabash avenue and Adams street, at 11 o'clock this forenoon.

Edward Blunes was killed and it is reported that two others are dead and many injured. Several explosions occurred, the streets were in a panic. A general alarm was sent out.

A colored man named McDonald jumped from a window and was killed. Two other dead have been identified as Miles Smith and Samuel Clark. The flames soon enveloped the station on the union loop of the elevated road. As a result all traffic on every elevated road in the city was brought to a standstill, so far as the business district was concerned. There were the most sensational rumors in regard to loss of life, one to the effect that 60 had perished. Another that seven persons were seen to fall back into the flames.

PANICS.

Three hundred girls were employed by the firm. They were thrown into a panic and many unfortunates were trampled under the feet of comrades in their frantic efforts to escape. Cut off from the elevators and stairways the frantic occupants began jumping from the windows. Though the firemen held nets to catch them a number were crushed on the stone sidewalks. According to eye witnesses, as many as 10 jumped at once, and others were seen to fall back into the flames. The fire quickly spread to the lower floors and the heat became so intense that plate glass was broken in windows across the street a block away on either side and the firemen had to direct streams of water on them to prevent them catching fire. A panic was created in the Wellington hotel across the street, and with much difficulty some of the guests were prevented from jumping from the windows.

THE DEAD.

The dead so far as known are: Miles A. Smith, salesman; Samuel A. Clark, employe of the Olmstead Scientific Co.; unidentified man; W. A. Olmstead, president of Olmstead Scientific Co., and —— Wallach of Sweet, Wallach & Co., missing, supposed to have perished.

THE INJURED.

H. B. Cunningham, employe of the Northern Pacific Express Co.; Mary Lapers, employe of Sweet, Wallach & Co.; Herman Overman, same company; colored waiter H. H. Kohlsaat & Co. restaurant; Policeman Rogers; S. C. Snyder, employe of Sweet, Wallach & Co. E. A. Wise, same company.

The financial loss will reach half a million dollars.

Half an hour after the fire started the floors had all fallen followed by the walls. The heat twisted the steel girders of the union elevated street railway loop, and 300 feet of it will have to be rebuilt. The six story building adjoining is badly damaged. It is occupied by the Educational Publishing Co., the Ideal Music Co., New Haven Clock Co., the Waterbury Watch Co., H. H. Butler & Co., R. C. Waichbrodt, turkish rugs, and others.

A HEROINE.

Miss Kate Carney, forewoman of the National Music Co. building, on the fourth floor, where 40 girls were employed, remained there until she got all the panic stricken girls out and it is believed lost her life as a result.

Josie and Anna Baxa, employed by the National Music Co., jumped from the second floor. David Schaefer had his arm broken trying to break the fall of a man who jumped from a window and the man's back was broken; W. H. Murphy was overcome by smoke.

The ambulance officials put the number known to be dead at six, with probably about 20 more and 23 injured. Among the missing is Sol Grollman, western agent for Holtzman & Co., tool manufacturers of Columbus, Ohio, and his father.

The fire was brought under control shortly before noon. It is now thought that the fatalities will not exceed 15 and that the estimate putting the number at 60 is exaggerated.

THORNS TO SIT UPON.

Many people gather thorns by failing to heed the warning sent out by diseased kidneys. Pasted tongue—parched skin—feverishness—dull, dragging pain—general feeling of weariness—is sure evidence of kidney and bladder trouble. Take Utah Kidney Beans at once—they will cure you—they have cured thousands of others. THE TURNERS OF PHILADELPHIA make Utah Kidney Beans.

E. H. Samuels, County Clerk of Hickman county, Clinton, Kentucky, testifies, that he suffered for years with horrible pains in the back, kidneys and bladder—was treated by many physicians—they gave him no relief—he got so that he could hardly stand—the Utah Kidney Beans, he says, completely cured him. He gladly recommends them to all sufferers.

MAUZY TRIAL.

read the newspapers about the case. Been working for Sherry Tuttle and live south of Jackson street school. Could try the case as fairly and impartially as if he had not read the newspaper accounts. Has no opinion as to the guilt or innocence of Manzy and has never been connected with any criminal cases. Would be willing to give prisoner the benefit of the doubt.

W. L. Shellabarger and Charles Dawson were challenged because they had opinions and had expressed them.

Jacob Hanes—Didn't read any of the letters which were presented to the board of pardons. Formed no opinions and believed he could try the case impartially. Would give Manzy benefit of any doubt.

Mr. Johns re-examined Asa Clothier. The juror had no prejudice against an alibi. Martin and Hanes were also asked if they had any objections to an alibi as a defense. Mr. Johns asked Martin in regard to the revolver. He asked him whether or not he thought it belonged to Faunce. This was objected to and the objection sustained. Martin said that he had never heard Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Griffith talk about the case. He was asked a number of questions until the judge said the examination had gone far enough and he would not permit it to be carried any farther. Mr. Johns then challenged the juror peremptorily.

S. T. Nesbitt, Frank Watson, T. S. Ronan, James Rucker were examined by Mr. Johns and were challenged because they held opinions.

FOUR SECURED.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the four jurors mentioned before, Albert, Craycroft, Bankston and Bukman, had been accepted by both sides and Asa Clothier and Jacob Hanes were accepted by the attorneys for the defense.

Those examined and excused last evening were L. C. Ruddick, Frank P. Blume, G. Collins, R. R. McDonald, Frank P. Hoffman, David Florey, Ed Carr, A. B. Chapman, Lindon Bowden, Arthur Allen, John Baumgardner, W. A. Arnold, J. H. Black, Joseph Bowman, Albert Clark, Joseph Blair, James Ballenger, Albert Brockton, John Cloud, John Keller and Abe Enlow.

THE ACCUSED

Joe Manzy, the accused man, is the only son of John H. Manzy. A few years after the latter's term of office expired the family moved from the city. Joe Manzy is married and has two children and for some time past has been living on an 80-acre farm near Oakland, Ill. The father resides on a large farm about a half mile from his son's home. While Mr. Manzy was sheriff of this county Joe acted as turnkey at the jail, wherein he is now held in custody. He was well known in Decatur and even though it has been a number of years since he lived in the city he has many acquaintances in the community.

Since the prisoner was arrested and brought back to this city he has declined to have anything to say in regard to his case. He received a few of his friends the first night he arrived in the city, but he has all along flatly refused to talk to newspaper men and has seen only his closest relatives and most intimate friends. Manzy occupies one of the cell rooms on the second floor of the jail building in that part which was formerly used for the women. He eats his meals in his cell and since he has been awaiting trial he has passed most of his time through the day reading. John Manzy has been in the city with his son and will remain here during the trial.

THE INDICTMENT.

Both Joe Manzy and Jack Faunce have friends in the city and among the latter there has always been a feeling that Faunce was not guilty. On the other hand the friends of Manzy believe that he is entirely innocent of the crime. From time to time there has been talk of making efforts to have Faunce pardoned, but they never materialized until the past few months. The matter was taken up by Harry M. Wheeler, who with the view of securing Faunce's pardon, got the affidavits of many persons claiming to be acquainted with the details of the case. These with various other documents were gathered and presented to the state board of pardons. Since the indictment of Manzy the board has dropped the matter until after the trial, which is now to begin. While the efforts to secure Faunce's pardon were being carried on the grand jury was in session. The evidence gathered in the cause of Faunce was made public and the grand jury on their own accord decided to investigate the case. This was done and in a most thorough manner. Everyone who was likely to know anything of the case was summoned until the jurors had heard the different stories of about 80 witnesses. Some of the testimony was believed to be of great importance and some witnesses were able to tell but very little. After many days of work on the case the grand jury adjourned on Saturday evening, February 5, and returned an indictment against Manzy charging him with the murder. While some of the evidence heard by the grand jurors was made public through the newspapes there was much of it that was not known on the outside. At any rate the testimony of the witnesses was sufficient to cause the indictment to be returned. The bill when it reached the hands of the sheriff was at once served. Sheriff Nicholson left for Oakland Monday morning and in the evening returned home with the prisoner. The sheriff went first to the residence of John Manzy and Joe was summoned from his home and put under arrest. The names of the grand jurors who indicted Manzy together with their place of residence and occupation were as follows: J. S. Nowlin, Latham, farmer; L. L. Swarthout, Boody, well driller; Robert Foster, Decatur, fireman; William Leeke, Decatur, engineer; E. P. Reynolds, Decatur, carpenter; G. F. White, Decatur, druggist; Eri Querry, Argenta, liveryman; Frank Crom, Harristown, farmer; C. A. Thrift, Forsythe, farmer; F. M. Cressler, Warrensburg, farmer; Peter T. Van Dunnan, Cerro Gordo, farmer; John Phillips, Cerro Gordo, farmer; Frank Potter, Maroa, carpenter; Albert Gossman, Maroa, farmer; William Gibson, Dalton, farmer; J. F. Roberts, Mt. Zion, farmer; Michael Haher, Niantic, merchant; T. J. Manecke, Oakley, farmer; J. K. Hardy, Blue Mound, farmer; William H. Willoughby, Macon, farmer; Fred J. Jostes, Macon, grain merchant; J. M. Hutchinson, Decatur, gardener; George W. Betzer, Orena, afarmer.

IN COURT.

Manzy was arraigned in the circuit court on Tuesday, February 8. His attorney, W. C. Johns, entered for him the plea of not guilty. After a long consultation the judge set the trial of the case for Monday, March 14. Manzy then returned to the county jail, where he has since been kept.

It is likely that the case will be in progress for about three weeks. A special venire of 100 jurymen has been drawn and in compliance with the request of Judge Vail the supervisors put in the petit jury box the names of 200 more men. On account of the fact that most everyone is familiar with the story of the case and because so many have opinions in regard to it the probabilities are that the attorneys will have a hard time in securing a jury. It is not unlikely that the first week will be taken up and that several hundred men will be examined before a jury is selected. For this reason the trial will cost the county a large sum of money.

The court room will doubtless be crowded every day with interested spectators eager to listen to all of the evidence and arguments in a case which is being tried so long after the crime was committed and which will settle forever the question as to whether Jack Faunce or Joe Manzy is guilty of the murder of Mat McKinley.

MR. MILLS' OPINION.

State's Attorney Mills said today that the case would be ready to try on Monday morning and that as far as he knew there would be nothing to hinder its being taken up. In speaking of the matter Mr. Mills said: "Mr. Crea will have charge of the prosecution, the case is in his hands. It will probably be a long case and although a jury may be secured quickly in my judgment a number of days will be taken up in choosing the jurymen."
